Press Release:
7th February, 2012

Meghalaya Police conducts training programme on Drug Law Enforcement.

Director General of Police, N. Ramachandran emphasised the need to strictly enforce the Drug Laws to save the society from the menace of drug abuse which has been spreading alarmingly. In his address to the police officers on Tuesday at Police Training School, where a training programme on Drug Law Enforcement has been organised jointly by the State CID and Narcotics Control Bureau (NCB), Government of India, on 7th & 8th February, 2012. Police officers from all Districts and units are taking part in this training.

Drug Trafficking is one of the most heinous crimes against humanity, but being extremely lucrative, many unscrupulous persons have been taking to this crime. Drug abuse has not only ruined the lives and careers of thousands of young persons, but also wrecked many families and put the society itself in serious danger. The DGP told the officers that it is the bounden duty of the police to save the society from this abuse and advised the police officers to identify the drug traffickers in the state and take stringent action against them under the law. Strict vigil along the known drug routes as well as along the Indo-Bangladesh border as well as borders with neighbouring state has been advised.
